Marc Painter's real estate practice focuses on complex real estate transactions, finance and development, as well as banking and related business counseling.

For over 30 years, Marc's regional and national development and lending clients have sought his creative counsel in navigating difficult transactions to profitable completion.

Strong Cost-Benefit Approach: Marc's past experience as an economist and banker brings a unique and valuable cost-benefit approach to transactions and disputes. That experience also gives him knowledge of the financial and business needs of other parties in a deal and an ability to effectively work through those issues early to reach a favorable agreement.

Structuring Deals to Avoid Litigation: Marc's prior experience as a commercial, banking and real estate litigator affords him a thorough understanding of the reasons for disputes and a unique sensitivity to the potential for, and the distractions of, litigation. Clients value his experience in helping them anticipate and then develop effective strategies to structure deals in ways that avoid disputes or in positioning their transactions properly if litigation is a necessity.

EXPERIENCE

Real Estate Clients

Marc's experience includes representing developers in commercial and industrial development, multi-family projects, residential and commercial condominium development, and complex mixed use and resort projects. He assists in virtually all stages of a project, including:

- Site Acquisition
- Due Diligence
- Entitlements
- Choice Of Entity
- Equity And Debt Funding Structures
- Common Interest Community Structures
- Leasing

- Sales And Exit Strategies

Banking Clients

His lending clients also rely on his years of experience through varying economic cycles in evaluating and then drafting both real estate and asset-based commercial lending facilities, including:

- Acquisition, Development and Construction Loan Agreements and Security Instruments
- Intercreditor Agreements and Participation Arrangements
- Conduit and Other Institutional Non-Recourse Loans
- Title, Lien Search and Due Diligence Review
- Refinancings and Workouts
- Tax Credit, HUD, FHA and Similar Specialized Lending Structures
- Policies, Forms and Remedies Relating to Conflicts Between Federal Banking Law and Legalized Recreational and Medical Marijuana

Business Clients

Businesses from a variety of industries seek Marc's proactive representation as general counsel because of his thirty-plus years of experience assisting companies navigate the complexities of business operations. Whether it is one of the world's leading tennis racquet manufacturers, breweries and restaurants, high-tech manufacturers or solar providers, Marc looks for the most practical and cost-effective solutions. But where needed, he also calls upon the resources of other specialties in the firm, from insurance, to tax and securities, international trade regulation, anti-trust, internet and intellectual property, environmental, employment and complex compensation and benefit planning.

Other Areas of Emphasis

Marc's work in the resorts, lodging, and entertainment areas includes golf course community development work as well as hotel and restaurant liquor and related licensing. He also works with the firm's healthcare group in real estate, construction and related matters.
