Clients appreciate Sarah's strategic approach to complex civil litigation, insurance, and employment matters.

Sarah proactively communicates with clients to establish and implement a strong legal defense throughout all phases of litigation from investigation through trial. She aids clients in assessing various risks to define a "win" and rigorously pursues victory in and out of court.

In addition to handling various business litigation matters, Sarah's background in the insurance industry allows her to guide policyholders through the complexities of insurance coverage and coverage litigation disputes. Sarah also supports companies through the ever-changing maze of employment law, helping employers effectively mitigate risks up front and navigate employment disputes that may arise.

Sarah commands a thorough understanding of the legal field, working as a litigation paralegal for three years before becoming an attorney. This foundational experience gives her a unique perspective of legal matters that runs through all her work with clients.
