Savanna guides clients of all sizes through the complexities of domestic and global trademark portfolio management and enforcement.

Savanna works in close partnership with brand owners in the outdoor recreation, food and beverage, and technology industries to develop and implement comprehensive trademark prosecution and enforcement strategies tailored to each business' unique interests. When the need arises, Savanna also represents clients before state and federal courts.

Before joining Holland & Hart, Savanna worked as an examining attorney at the US Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) where she reviewed domestic and international trademark applications. After law school, she completed a legal fellowship at the Denver District Court.
