Sarah leverages insider knowledge of how business is done with Montana government to help companies navigate regulatory, policy, and litigation issues.

Sarah brings a deep network of relationships and singular experience to deliver holistic litigation, government affairs, and lobbying services to clients developing projects in Montana. She is a respected connector of people, known for her emotional intelligence and solution-oriented, relatable approach.

Drawing on relationships with legislators, elected and appointed officials, government agencies and directors, private interest groups, and industry leaders, Sarah knows what issues are on the horizon and provides access to key decision makers. She helps clients anticipate legislative, policy, and political developments that may affect their business interests and proactively develop strategies ranging from up-front liaison and advocacy, engagement on regulatory initiatives and rulemakings, drafting legislation, and lobbying.

Clients benefit from Sarah's extensive experience handling complex, high-profile civil litigation in all levels of state and federal courts and administrative proceedings. As Assistant Attorney General in Montana's Department of Justice, she managed the litigation needs of 42 state agencies and presided over state agencies as a hearing examiner (ALJ). Sarah also served as agency in-house litigation counsel for the Montana Department of Environmental Quality and as Chief Legal Counsel to the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks. She served as a law clerk for Magistrate Judge Carolyn S. Ostby of the US District Court for the District of Montana.
